Day 5 Amnéville – Reims – Mercier cellar – Paris

Breakfast

After breakfast, depart to the city of champagne---Reims. Visit Reims Cathedral. About 1500 years ago, Clovis, the first king of the Franks was baptized by Christian at Reims Cathedral. There is a smiling angel relief on the front gate of the cathedral is special and famous. Continue to Maison Mercier, which has the largest wine cellar in Champagne and whose founder is said to have been friends with the designer of the Eiffel Tower. They agreed to do something for the 100th anniversary of the French Revolution in 1889, a few decades later, to make themselves and their work famous for posterity. So, in 1871, Mr. Mercier enlisted more than 2,000 people to dig an 18-kilometer-long cellar in hard limestone, 30 meters deep and very spacious, the largest champagne cellar in France today. The cellars are lined up in an orderly fashion with endless cellars and champagne racks, and there is also an "automatic electric train" that visitors can explore.
At night, arrive in Paris around 20:00.
